Tragic Ending to the Search For Mariame Toure Sylla

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

The month-long search for Mariame Toure Sylla, a long-time Greenbelt teacher who went missing on an evening walk at Schrom Hills Park on July 29, drew to a tragic close on Friday when police announced they had identified her remains.

During a press conference on Friday, September 1, Prince George's County Police Chief Malik Aziz announced remains found in a park on Old Alexandria Ferry Road in Clinton have been identified as Sylla's. The remains were found on August 1 on some rocks by a pond. DNA is still being processed but provided enough preliminary results to positively identify the remains as Sylla's, they announced Friday. Police reported she had been decapitated and dismembered. An autopsy to determine cause of death is still being conducted.

and Sylla's sister from the Ivory Coast, Fatma Toure, were present for the press conference.

Landon Charged

Harold Francis Landon III, 33, of University Park, has been charged with Sylla's murder, police also announced at the same press conference. He's been in custody on domestic violence charges since August 1, arrested the day after they believe he dumped Sylla's remains. Police do not believe he and Sylla knew each other.

Another Amazing Labor Day Festival Enjoyed in Greenbelt

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

Last weekend residents and visitors enjoyed yet another spectacular Labor Day celebration spread over four days in Greenbelt. It marked the 69th Greenbelt Labor Day Festival, one of the largest all-volunteer organized events in the state. The Greenbelt Labor Day Festival was started in 1955 as a way of raising funds to build a Youth Center. It had been held every year since until 2020 when it was cancelled due to the Covid pandemic. In 2021 a smaller-scale Festival was held, without the usual accompanying carnival. Last year, 2022, was the first year back to a full Festival and this year organizers described it as a "banner year."

One of the many highlights is the vibrant Parade. This year's Parade winners reflect the diversity of those marching, from the theatrical musical performances of the Greenbelt Honk! Situation, which encompassed dancing, puppetry, unicycling and plenty of brass to the sweet flowers of Greenbelt Elementary School, "where students grow," the Barbie Dream Home of Town Center Realty, the cheers, pool noodles, barracudas and decorated car of the Greenbelt Swim Team and the fantastic athletic choreography of the Greenbelt S.I.T.Y. Stars and Lady Raiders.

Though they didn't win prizes, many politicians gave an enthusiastic appearance, including Steny

Hoyer, who no longer represents Greenbelt due to redistricting but continues to join the Parade each year, Delegate Nicole Williams and Prince George's County Councilmember Ingrid Watson, among others. This election year Parade participants also included Greenbelt City Council challengers Matthew Inzeo and Jenni Pompei.

Greenbelt Station HOA Talks Crime, Recreation and Rentals

by Maurice Crawford

The Greenbelt City Council held a stakeholder worksession with the Greenbelt Station Homeowners Association (HOA) on Monday, August 28. Greenbelt Station was represented by Roseana Gilmore of the Greenbelt Station Master Association and Cornell Lynch of the Greenbelt Station HOA. Greenbelt Station is a nine-year-old community composed of 505 units, including townhouses and condominiums. During the meeting several topics were covered, ranging from public safety to recreation and the arts.

Public Safety

Concerns expressed by community representatives included crimes related to vehicles and the stealing of packages. However, Gilmore said there was good communication with the Police Department, which was very responsive to calls. Because of the limited access to the community, a single ramp from Greenbelt Road, Councilmember Judith Davis and Mayor Emmett Jordan suggested that cameras may be useful to record autos entering and leaving the area.

Speeding is another concern even though the roundabouts help to slow traffic. Greenbelt's Department of Planning and Community Development is currently

Public Input on Buddy Attick Park Master Plan

I missed the master plan meeting and have suggestions not mentioned in the article in the August 24 News Review: the health of trees and soil, the addition of squirrel-proof trash cans, fishing-line containers and recycling, a second restroom at the peninsula end and new information signs at the water's edge.

The last few storms have knocked down many trees regardless of storm severity. Many falling trees may indicate poor tree health, soil or too much moisture in the ground. A study should be conducted to determine the cause of falling trees and remedial steps taken to replace trees with those matching the habitat.

I agree with entrance signage and in Spanish, but not trail conduct signs and right of way to pedestrians. My personal experience has been these signs are ignored, and the trail would need to be widened to accommodate lanes and take away from the natural feel of the lake.

I agree trail accessibility is an issue. However, most of the trail is packed down hard and should be accommodating to wheelchairs. There are some areas that need to be graded, require drainage pipes or removal of concrete, paving and roots, but I don't see the need to make the whole trail concrete or pavement. However, I agree to permeable surfaces (like the parking lot sidewalk) from the parking lot to the trail due to erosion from storms and an added trail on the peninsula.

Nice to have: a two-sided bench under the awning where the swing existed, near the bathroom so people can sit while waiting for the bathroom or to use the ball court.

Please take the survey (www.surveymonkey.com/r/buddyattickpark), there is a comments section at the end of the survey to add whatever comments you have regarding the lake and completion links to the first community meeting PowerPoint.

Obituaries

Genevieve Iacovazzi

Genevieve “Jenny” Iacovazzi died at the age of 80 in August 2023. Jenny’s life leaves a legacy of kindness, compassion, conscientiousness, generosity and a strong faith in God.

Jenny was born and grew up on a family farm in upstate New York near the Finger Lakes, with Italian immigrant parents and three older sisters. She married and moved to other states, settling in Florida for over 50 years. Jenny was a homemaker during the first third of her adult life, supporting and caring for her husband and their only child.

After being divorced in middle age, Jenny worked as a book-keeper by day and attended college by night to earn a bachelor’s degree in accounting, being first in her immediate family to earn a college degree. This helped her secure long-term employment at Tri-County Transit in Orlando (now Lynx). She earned a second bachelor’s degree in business administration.

Jenny enjoyed her loving family and friends, her purrific cats, traveling, Bible study, quilting and sewing, water aerobics, line dancing, volunteering at the Orlando Shakespeare Theater and walking. Jenny volksmarched on 10-kilometer walks with her daughter and daughter-in-law. Her travels led her to visit and hike in many parts of the U.S.

Jenny moved to live with her daughter and daughter-in-law in Greenbelt in February. She enjoyed St. Hugh of Grenoble Catholic Church, Greenbelt Community Church’s Zoom Bible Study Group, Gifts from the Heart, Golden Age Club, Senior Nutrition Program, Club 300 walking club and water aerobics.

Although fiercely independent, Jenny cared for the needs of her community, volunteering many hours of her time while in Florida. As a leader in the Council of Catholic Women, she organized an effort to collect bottle caps to buy wheelchairs for people who could not afford them and raised money for kids in domestic violence living situations. She performed with line dance troupes to encourage older people to exercise in a fun way. She co-founded an interfaith Community Bible Study, and was an active member for two decades.

Genevieve Iacovazzi

What is most remembered about Jenny was her presence, the kindness and sparkle in her eyes, and her warm smile.

As the matriarch of a large family, Jenny will be deeply missed by her daughter, Siena Iacovazzi, and her wife, Jeannie; and countless friends, cousins, sisters and brothers-in-law, nieces and nephews, grand nephews and nieces, and great-grand nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her parents, Dominic and Mary Esposito; sisters Mary “Dolly” Bartlett, Mildred D’Apice, and Lillian Roselli; and cats Rama, Max, Leo and Jojo.

A private celebration of Jenny’s life was held in Greenbelt. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made in Jenny Iacovazzi’s name to the Alzheimer’s Association, National Parks Conservation Association, Sierra Club or other charities. To share a memory or make a donation, visit Jenny’s tribute page at Gary L. Kaufman Funeral Home: dignitymemorial.com/obituaries/elkridge-md/genevieve-iacovazzi-11408335.

cooperatively in one boat, with each person having their own oar. An additional person, called a coxswain, sits at the back of the boat facing the rowers and gives them steering instructions. The coxswain has a rudder and steers with their hands.

“There are oars on one side of the boat and there are oars on the other side of the boat,” said Melissa Ehrenreich, a member of the Greenbelt Gliders. “And if you’re not all rowing together, it’s as if you only have one person rowing.”

The event was part of the Washington Rowing School’s Community Challenge program, which offered DMV residents free rowing classes starting on July 29 and culminated with a regatta on August 26. During the weeks leading up to the race, participants had the opportunity to practice four days a week.

“It’s really an opportunity for people who have either never gotten in a boat, or who want to get back in a boat,” Ehrenreich said. “It also [allows] people to engage their neighbors in being in a boat together.”

Forming a Team

Greenbelt resident Amy Knesel received an email from the rowing school regarding this year’s community challenge and thought that it would be a great opportunity for herself and some of her friends. She then created a Facebook post and asked around, successfully locating more women from Greenbelt who wanted to participate in the program. “When they brought up this idea of a month-long rowing challenge, it seemed like a perfect fit for some of my Greenbelt friends,” Knesel said.

Several of the Greenbelt Gliders members had a connection to rowing before participating in the Community Challenge. Team member Corita Waters rowed when she was a student at St. Mary’s College. Her fond memories of the camaraderie and being on the water made her eager to participate in the challenge.

“I love being out on the water, but having other people from Greenbelt, we carpool together,” Waters said. “And that really helps that outward motivation of [knowing] someone else is driving down there and getting up at 5 a.m. to head down to the river.”

Team members not pictured: Gisela Bardossy and Lei Zong.

Jessica Blacksten of the Greenbelt Gliders attended a rowing interest meeting in high school. However, after she was told that she would have to be the coxswain, she decided to play soccer instead. “They normally put really small people there [as a coxswain],” Blacksten said, recalling the situation. “And I was really small, and the rowers are the people that are like 6 feet tall. So, at 5 feet 3 [inches], they were not going to put me in a boat, not even the lightweight boat.”

Piri Jenkins did not previously row but her husband’s family is really into the sport. His uncle was a part of the 1980 U.S. Olympic rowing team. “I’ve just heard so much about rowing,” Jenkins said. “And I was really trying to get my husband to sign up, but he wouldn’t.”

The Regatta

The race started with three heats, or groups, of two boats each being sent out about 20 minutes apart, starting at 8 a.m. The first-place teams from the different heats were then grouped for one semifinal race and the second-place teams were grouped for another. The two fastest boats from the first semifinal and the winner of the second semifinal were then placed in a grand final round.

A team comprised of residents from D.C., Alexandria and Arlington won the challenge. While the Greenbelt Gliders were eliminated in the semifinals, the team members were happy about their performance.

“Considering it was the first time that all of us on that boat had rowed together, we did a really good job,” Knesel said after the race. “We could have done better.” Jenkins added, “I think my favorite part is being out on the water. We saw a whole bunch of egrets today and ducks and it was beautiful.”

Making Rowing Accessible

This is the 11th year that the Washington Rowing School has offered the Community Challenge. Cindy Cole, founder of the school, said that the sport was once more popular. However, accessibility has made it a challenge for more people to participate. She buys used equipment for people who live near the boathouse to use.

“Not everybody has waterways and boathouses that they can access to do this sport,” Cole said. “So, it has evolved.”

While the Greenbelt Gliders aren’t sure if they’ll compete in another regatta next year, they do encourage others who are interested in learning to row to consider doing the program. “The Washington Rowing School is perfect for beginners,” Knesel said. “Coach Cindy Cole was an incredible instructor and endlessly patient. It’s great for beginners as well as people who have rowed before.”

collecting traffic data to develop further remedies. Also discussed was the lack of parking, although the creation of one-way streets has helped with this and elicited positive feedback from the community.

Recreation

Greenbelt Station representatives were concerned about the lack of recreational areas for young adults and children. Councilmember Kristen Weaver noted that the Recreation and Public Works departments assisted in the community’s summer party on June 10 and will likely help in future events including an outdoor movie and a Halloween party.

Davis mentioned that Greenbelt Recreation’s mobile van is a way to provide activities for youth. In addition, plans are moving forward with installing shaded seating areas in the Central Park.

Rentals

There was some discussion around students renting in the community and the issues that raises. Currently, about 17 percent of the homes have been licensed by the city for rental. However, some councilmembers cautioned that too many rental units may affect the ability to receive home loans. Representatives commented that there are no rules in the Greenbelt Station HOA bylaws limiting the number of rental units, and changing the bylaws is an onerous task.

WMATA Trail

There was also a conversation regarding the status of a trail that will connect the Greenbelt Station community to the Greenbelt Metro Station. This project is affected by the possible future FBI headquarters because if it is built, its placement plays a role in where the trail would be located. Unfortunately, a decision regarding the location of the FBI facility has not yet been made, preventing the trail project from moving ahead.

Point of View

Troubles of the New Deal Café: Clarification of Some Points

by Michael Hartman

As president of the New Deal Café, I am writing to clarify some of the points that were highlighted in the News Review article about the Café’s open board meeting on August 28.

The New Deal Café is in financial peril and without a steady revenue stream, we are at risk of having to close. We have been fortunate in the past to have such a generous community response, but without a new business plan in place that responds to our current situation, we are at risk of being back where we are today in 6 to 12 months.

The board is proposing multiple actions to generate direct and fixed revenue to support the Café’s current operations. Some of these ideas may go against the way the “Café’s always done it” but the way we’ve been doing it just isn’t working anymore.

Covid changed everything, from labor, food, logistics, etc. Those changes come with increased costs. Other costs include rent, utilities, equipment maintenance and replacement. These must be borne by “someone.” In the past, that “someone” has always been the Café. In the current contract with the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative (Co-op), they have borne those expenses.

The Café has borne the costs of operating our music and arts programming. These costs now include the rent, as well as salary for our music coordinator, licensing that allows our bands to perform copyrighted songs and long-term debt that was incurred to keep the Café from permanently shutting down during the worst of the pandemic and allowing us to reopen when it was safe to do so.

However, to continue to serve the community and act as the “living room,” we are going to need to look toward our guests to help keep this model alive. After all, to enjoy a living room, one has to pay rent or a mortgage and pay utilities.

The Café does have three key “assets” that we own and need to leverage properly. 1) We have our awesome community, whom we know we can count on. 2) We have our name, which just won first place in Washington City Paper’s 2023 Best of DC for Best Place to Experience Local Music and Best Place to Have Dinner with Live Music, plus additional recognition for Best Jazz/Blues Venue, Best Neighborhood Music Series and more. 3) The most important is our music. Where else can you go see a live music show in the D.C. area for free? Well, it is #3 that we need to build upon. Whether that is tickets for events, a cover charge or a nominal fee charged on transactions, we need to at bare minimum allow the music to support itself.

It is our goal to provide a sustainable business model that will carry us through until we can successfully hire a new food vendor.

These changes may come as a shock to our community but as with anything different, we feel that our community will adjust with the change and find it beneficial.

The Café will work through the options on the table during September and aim to announce and implement a change on October 1.

We will then use October 1 to January 31 to evaluate the effectiveness of the new revenue model, the community impact and its sustainability moving forward.

This also buys us some much-needed relief while we and the Co-op consider the evolving financial situation.

It also allows the Café, if the board finds it is preferable, to search, negotiate and award a contract with a new food vendor moving forward.

The Café will not survive without a fixed income business plan, and reactionary community fundraising is not a business plan. We do want to continue to raise funds, offer galas and community festivals, but these funds should be used for “improving” the Café and its offerings to the community, not just to keep the lights on.

As an example of the Café’s current efforts, we are planning a first-time ticketed “Masquerade the Café” Ball on October 14 and offering sponsorships as well as tickets on our website at newdealcafe.com/cafeball.

Michael Hartman is president of the New Deal Café.

Musician Eli Lev to Perform At the New Deal Café Sept. 13

by Ruby Roane

Eli Lev, born Justin Lev, hails from Boonsboro, Md. He’s a unique musician, captivating audiences far and wide. On Wednesday, September 13 he’ll bring his soulful melodies and passionate lyrics to the New Deal Café. Lev last performed at the New Deal in 2019 and is looking forward to returning for what will be the release show for his upcoming single That Universal Song, which will be released the same day.

As an independent artist, Lev has had the opportunity to shape his career on his own terms. “I don’t feel like I’m in the music industry,” he said. “As an independent artist, I am doing my own thing on my own timing.” Lev does not have a manager or a record label. But like musicians who sign to record labels, Lev still has a strong fanbase. “I have a community called the ‘Levitate’ and we are our own feedback system,” he said. The community inspires and supports him as he continues to create and connect with his audience.

Lev’s music goes beyond the stage, with participatory music videos that invite listeners to become part of the storytelling. His next EP, Present Journey, reflects his deep introspection and observation of how the world interacts and reacts to itself, according to Lev, hinting at the depth and thoughtfulness that fans can expect.

As a musician, Lev cherishes the interactions with his audience and the personal impact of his songs. “I like the interactions and to see the songs affect them personally,” he said. His songwriting process is deeply rooted in everyday life, as he explained. “I’m listening to everything around me and am connected to how people are responding.”

Pandemic Impact

The Covid pandemic brought challenges for musicians worldwide and Lev was no exception. “It had a lot of impact on my career, my shows were canceled,” said Lev. Like many artists, he had to find ways to adapt. “In shifting my business, I started live streaming,” he said. “People needed to feel connected and that’s how we could.”

Live streaming not only became a way for Lev to share his music but became a way for him to engage with his audience on a personal level. “It’s been a way for me to connect with people and to see how their week is going,” he said. He believes in the power of music to unite and uplift others.

Looking toward the future, Lev said, “My long-term goals are to just keep going.” His inspiration for music often comes from unexpected places like the vast valleys of New Mexico or the bustling cities of Spain.

“What I am about is acceptance and that there is a place for you,” he emphasized. Lev’s journey as a musician is about fostering connections and sharing meaningful stories with the world.

Identifying Landon
Around 9:30 p.m. on July 31 a witness saw a man dumping something from his white pickup truck at the park in Clinton and then cleaning his hands in the pond, police shared. The witness took a photo and reported the incident to police. Surveillance video from the park confirmed the presence of the pickup truck and revealed the driver turned off the headlights as he drove toward the pond. Cellphone records place Landon at the park in Clinton around 9:30 p.m. on Monday, July 31 and at Schrom Hills Park around 7 p.m. on Saturday, July 29, when Sylla was thought to be walking there. Police say he has also been identified in the photo and surveillance video by people who know him. Power tools, including a reciprocating saw, were found at his residence in University Park.

Landon has several previous arrests, including for domestic violence. Records show there was a previous restraining order from May this year, related to domestic violence, that included the surrender of firearms, though it was dismissed at the request of the petitioner nine days later. He is currently incarcerated on further domestic violence charges, to which the charges of first- and second-degree murder have now been added.

Chance
So much in this case seems to have come down to chance. With no evidence Landon knew Sylla, it appears to have been chance that he was at Schrom Hills Park as she took her regular nightly walk. Ricardo Dennis of Greenbelt Police Department told the News Review of his dismay that the beloved teacher’s murder was likely a random event, in which she was walking at the wrong time, in the wrong place.

It was also chance that helped bring murder charges against Landon, who was already incarcerated, arrested by Greenbelt Police on unrelated charges. A witness happened to be working late that evening. A smoker, he went outside for a cigarette at the exact time he would see something being dumped by the pond. The case also highlighted the importance of assistance from the community, something Greenbelt police had been calling for. One tip that was called in turned out to be unrelated to the Sylla case but helped solve another crime. “We’re thankful for the break in this case,” said Dennis, who believed more information would be forthcoming as the murder case continues, led now by Prince George’s County police.

On Friday, September 1, police announced they had identified the remains of Mariame Sylla, who taught at Dora Kennedy French Immersion in Greenbelt for 17 years.

an educator. She joined Prince George’s County Public Schools (PGCPS) in 2006, when she taught for a year at Robert Goddard Montessori School before joining the Dora Kennedy school the following year. “She was passionate about teaching French and maintaining high standards for students. We will miss her caring personality, beautiful smile and helpful spirit,” said Principal Spence.

In Greenbelt’s Labor Day Parade on Monday the Prince George’s County Educators’ Association handed out black and red ribbons in awareness of murder victims and drove a car with a sign saying, “In Memory of Mme. Mariame Toure Sylla.”

“We are devastated that she was taken from us in such a heinous way,” said the school’s PTA. “We stand with her family – both blood-related and her family of educators and friends. As we process what this means for us all, let us continue to pray for one another, to show kindness and respect to one another and to support those in their suffering.”

As students at the Greenbelt

K-8 school return after the long Labor Day weekend, the school will have a support team of psychologists and school counselors ready to assist students and staff in dealing with the news and working through their grief. “We anticipate no less than 20-30 professional school counselors, crisis personnel and division-level administrators” to be at the school on Tuesday, said a letter from Spence on Monday. The support personnel will be available for counseling and to cover classes as needed. An announcement from the school said counseling will be available as long as necessary.

The funeral prayer for Madame Sylla has been scheduled for Friday, September 8 at 1:45 p.m. at the Diyanet Center of America (Turkish Mosque) at 9610 Good Luck Road in Lanham. On Monday, Spence said he anticipated modifications to normal instruction at the school but didn’t yet have a definitive plan.

The school had requested permission from PGCPS to make Friday an asynchronous virtual day for staff and students so they would not need to be present in their classrooms or online during the services for Sylla. On Tuesday evening the PTA announced that the request for a virtual day had been denied. “Our community has spent the last month tirelessly searching for, praying for and bringing awareness to the disappearance of our beloved Mme. Sylla. The devastation felt by her colleagues when they were informed of her heinous murder is palpable. The heartbreak of her students who canvassed neighborhoods and distributed flyers in hopes of bringing her home is overwhelming,” said an announcement from the PTA. “We believe that one of the most benevolent acts the county could take to truly show solidarity with our staff and community would be to allow them this one day to honor their friend and mourn her loss.”

Dirt Bike Passenger George Jackson, 22, Killed in Collision

The Prince George’s County Police Department’s Collision Analysis and Reconstruction Unit is investigating a fatal collision involving a dirt bike on Monday, August 28 in Lanham. The deceased passenger on the dirt bike is 22-year-old George Jackson of Greenbelt.

On August 28, at approximately 8:45 p.m., officers responded to the area of Lanham Severn Road and Main Street.

The preliminary investigation revealed the involved car was heading eastbound on Lanham Severn Road and the dirt bike traveling westbound. As the car’s driver attempted to make a left turn onto Main Street, his car and the dirt bike collided. The dirt-bike rider and the passenger, Jackson, were both transported to a hospital. Jackson died a short time later. The dirt-bike rider suffered serious injuries. The driver and passenger in the involved car were not injured.

GILA, Bahá’ís Offer Local Dialogue Series

The Bahá’í Community is teaming with Greenbelt Interfaith Leadership Association (GILA) to offer Sacred Ground (episcopal-church.org/sacred-ground/about), a free 11-session film-based series of dialogue circles on race and faith. Registration is open. The time and place for meetings, and whether they will be by Zoom or in person, will be decided collaboratively by registrants.

The idea to offer the series originated with the August 21 Reel and Meal showing of the film Traces of the Trade: A Story from the Deep North, which details the discovery by filmmaker Katrina Browne that her Rhode Island ancestors ran a major international slave-trading business in the 1800s. Browne now lives in Takoma Park, and was present at the New Deal Café to moderate the discussion. She introduced the Sacred Ground series which she herself developed for the Episcopal Church. The Episcopalians now offer the curriculum free for any faith-based organization that forms a group of participants.

To register interest in joining the local Sacred Ground dialogue circle or to ask questions, email Jim Fischer at jfischer2@verizon.net.

Greenbelt Police Department reported three domestic disputes, one involving a weapon.

Carjacking

On September 1 at 8:43 p.m. near 9100 Edmonston Court, a man with a handgun took a parked gray 2010 Honda CR-V (Md. 3DN0727) and its keys.

Robbery

On September 1 at 11:51 p.m. near Breezewood Drive and Edmonston Terrace, a man was lying unconscious in the street. The victim was awakened and appeared to be intoxicated and uncooperative. He said he was struck in the face and robbed of his cellphone and ID by four men.

On September 3 at 8:27 p.m. near 99 Centerway, a man was robbed of his bag by a man who implied he had a weapon. After taking the bag, the subject fled on foot back into the Labor Day Festival. While being interviewed, the victim noticed the defendant standing with a crowd of people and positively identified him as the robber, who was taken to Greenbelt Police Department for processing. The bag was never recovered.

Arrest

On August 30 at 3:30 p.m. near 9100 Edmonston Court, a Black man wearing a gray sweater broke into a vacant apartment unit. When he tried to flee, officers chased and caught him. He was identified as Ty're Isaiah Bonds-Bishop. Because of a warrant in Charles County for armed robbery, he was taken into custody, and charged with 4th degree burglary and providing false information to a police officer.

Break-in

On August 30 at 2:59 a.m. near 121 Centerway, responding to an alarm, officers searched the supermarket and found the door lock broken but no one on scene. The pharmacy door was also broken and medications were stolen.

Break-in and Vandalism

On September 1 at 11:11 a.m. near 7300 Hanover Parkway, a man in a dispute with a former tenant had the locks changed but when he returned the door was open. There was no damage to the door or locks but the walls and a door had holes in them. The man thought the vandal was the former tenant but had no evidence.

Firearms Arrest

On September 2 at 8:33 p.m. near 7600 Hanover Parkway, officers responded regarding a man armed with a weapon and encountered a man walking away from a vehicle. During a consent search, they found a handgun magazine in his pocket. When asked about a weapon, he said he did not have any weapons. Another officer arrived and while looking in the vehicle observed in plain view a loaded handgun on the front passenger floorboard. The man was arrested and the handgun, ammunition, and additional magazines were recovered. The Maryland State Police Gun Center found the man had no permit for the firearm.

Fighting

On September 2 at 4:27 a.m. near 6100 Breezewood Drive, two people fought over a dispute, leading to minor injuries; they refused medical attention.

On September 3 at 7:38 p.m. near 99 Centerway, two girls were fighting at the Labor Day Festival. Officers stopped the fight, and the two girls were identified and released.

Accidental Ingestion of Marijuana

On September 2 at 1:14 p.m. near 99 Centerway, a boy approached the police booth stating he felt high, and it was determined that he had consumed some marijuana Oreo cookie edibles. The boy's mother was notified and he was released into her care.

DUI

On September 2 at 1:41 a.m. near Greenbelt Road and Walker Drive, an officer on patrol observed a vehicle operating with a South Carolina temporary tag that had expired in July. A check of the temporary tag revealed it as nonvalid, and the vehicle was stopped. The officer made contact with the driver, smelled alcohol on his breath as he spoke and observed an open alcoholic beverage lying in plain view near the passenger seat. Upon request of his license and registration, the driver responded with slurred speech and failed to present any registration. The officer told the driver he had reasonable suspicion that he was operating the vehicle while impaired, and the driver consented to standard field sobriety testing (SFST). The driver displayed multiple signs of impairment and was arrested on the suspicion of DUI.

On September 2 at 12:09 a.m. near Kenilworth Avenue and the Beltway interchange, an officer on patrol observed a vehicle operating in an unsafe manner, drifting in and out of the lane. Upon contact with the driver, the odor of alcohol was detected, and the driver's eyes were bloodshot and glassy. The officer also observed an open alcoholic beverage inside the vehicle, and administered SFST. The driver displayed multiple signs of impairment and was arrested on the suspicion of DUI.

On September 3 at 12:09 a.m. near Greenbelt Road and Cunningham Drive, an officer on patrol observed a vehicle run a red light. Upon coming into contact with the driver the strong odor of alcohol was present in the vehicle. The driver stated that he had only had two drinks. The driver agreed to undergo SFST, but due to an unrelated medical condition he was not able to complete all of them. The driver's bloodshot eyes, slurred speech, strong odor of alcohol on his breath and display of multiple signs of impairment was cause to be arrested on the suspicion of DUI.

On September 3 at 2:02 a.m. near Hanover Parkway and Greenbelt Road, an officer on patrol observed a vehicle sitting at the green light for two cycles. Upon making contact with the driver, the officer smelled alcohol and could see that his eyes were bloodshot and glassy with his speech being slurred and labored. The officer asked the driver if he would consent to SFST and he consented. The driver displayed multiple signs of impairment and was arrested on the suspicion of DUI.

On September 3 at 11 p.m.

near 7200 Hanover Drive, an officer observed a vehicle operating on suspended registration. The strong odor of alcohol emanated from the vehicle and became stronger as the driver spoke. There were multiple open alcoholic beverages on the passenger side floor of the vehicle. The driver refused SFST. The officer then told the driver, that due to his training, knowledge and experience he would be subject to arrest regardless of consenting to SFST due to his observations. He exited the vehicle and was placed under arrest without incident.

Drunk and Disorderly Arrest

Stellar Returning Players, Rising Stars Offer Promise for ERHS Girls Soccer

by Patrick Gleason

The conclusion of the pre-season offers promise and excitement for the Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) girls soccer team. The varsity team combines 13 players from last fall's league and county championship squad with 12 newcomers. Returning seniors Angel Ngwane, Victoria Obisesan and Kaia Booker plan to best last season's accomplishments by first winning the region championship; afterward they will aspire to even loftier state goals. The Raiders begin their regular season hosting a tournament on Wednesday, September 6, against Holy Child at 5 p.m. followed by St. Mary's Ryken at 7 p.m.

Though the Raiders graduated senior wingers Sarai DeSouza and Julia Beckmann, Julia's sister Alena Beckmann provides blazing speed to the Raider offense, which will look for goals from forwards Gabriella Martinez, Claudia van der Have, Sofia Zuniga and Azaria Muhammad. The Raider midfield includes 2022 Honorable Mention All-State player Jada Savage along with classmate Sadie Swart, who helps facilitate the Raider offense. Sophomores Esther Obisesan and Autumn Freeman join Booker and Obisesan's older sister as key components of the Raider defense, along with freshman revelation Claire Alolga.

Aside from the opening tournament, highlights for the fall schedule include a trip to Georgetown Day School on Saturday, September 23 at 3:30 p.m. and a 5 p.m. home showdown on Thursday, September 28 against Bowie – the Raiders' lone county loss last fall. Roosevelt will develop depth with former junior varsity players including Olivia Gills, Cora Moore, Emelin Talavera, Alyssa Casey, Alicia Galban, Riley Rios, Leilah Eggleston and Nicole Lilja, while also adding newcomers Camilla Obamogie and Mahelet Dejenie.

Meanwhile, the junior varsity squad sports as much promise as the varsity, guided by sophomore defender Iris Gaycken's leadership and the skill of a talented freshman class. Ninth graders Nora Marx, Naomi Petralia, Julia Visnic and Ariana Cruz provide a plethora of options in the Raider midfield, while twin sisters Yadira and Karina Reyes Carranza join Gaycken as sophomore leaders.

Senior Azaria Muhammad prepares for the Roosevelt scrimmage against Elizabeth Seton High School on August 24 as Gabriella Martinez and Leilah Eggleston look on.

Newcomers Bayleigh Galie, Lien Gareri and Anna Grim solidify the Raider backline in front of keeper Zeala Tantoh. Sophomores Kira Moore, Madison Walker, Addison Green and Genelle Marshall will contribute to the Raider attack as they embark on an ambitious out-of-county schedule that starts with a home matchup on Monday, September 11 against Mount de Sales Academy.

The Raiders kicked off their Labor Day weekend with their tradition of a three-mile run around Greenbelt Lake and back before enjoying their last long weekend of summer. Afterward, they return prepared for a fall of challenges, growth and accomplishments.

Senior centerback Victoria Obisesan challenges junior midfielder Alyssa Casey for a Raider team focused on exceeding last season's successes.

Information Day Booth Gives Benefits to Members & Guests

by Cathie Meetre

Seven-year old Rian Conway and her mother, Lamore, enjoy experiencing old-school technology at the News Review's Information Day booth.

News Review members were out in force at Information Day on Saturday, September 2 during the Labor Day Festival. Over 20 members participated to make the Information Day booth successful. Visitors to the booth had the opportunity to learn more about the newspaper, to consider joining it or to play on the Smith-Corona portable typewriter (“Where’s the enter button?” said one youthful experimenter). But that was not the only benefit. With Eleanor Rosevelt looking benignly on, News Review members spent time mingling with different combinations of their colleagues. Week by week, the successive nature of the tasks required in publishing results in some paths rarely crossing, so some almost-mythical names became reality. Sporting their matching new mint-green T-shirts and sheltered from the sun by a canopy generously lent by the Farmers Market (thank you), News Review participants and their visitors enjoyed a pleasant and constructive early fall day.
